SAILING IN A GOOD BREEZE

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD, I SANDY HOOK, June 21.-The Katrina and Titania's crews were up early this morning and making things snug. When the tug came along at 9.30 o'clock to tow them out to the starting point both had mainsails up, and balloon jib topsails were also set in brails.

They were taken in tow and appeared of Staten Island shore at 10 o'clock. Half an hour later they were at the starting Haif an hour later they were at the starting point. Staysails were set on the way down, and at 10.35 o'clock they cast off under sail and commenced manœuvering for positions.

Club topaails were run up and made snug. The flagship Electra took up a position off buoy 10, and at 11 o'clock hauled down the yacht ensign and hoisted the blue poter in its place.

The preparatory gun was fired at the same time, and ten minutes later the starting gun was fired.

The preparatory gun was live at the starting gun was fired.

Then came the fight on the wind.

Ratrina had got slightly the advantage of Titania on the start and assumed the weather Titania on the start and assumed the weather position.

Slowly but surely Capt. Haff worked the Titania out from under the Katrina's lee. Inch by inch he nursed her along, and in no time at all he was to windward of Katrina.

It was pretty work, and the yachts were only a cable's length apart.

This pretty fight continued to buoy 5 off the pitch of the Hook, which the yachts passed as follows.

Titania, 11.37.33; Katrina, 11.40.40. The white sloop gained just 2m, and 28s, on her black-hulled antagonist since the start.

At 11.48 the yachts tacked to port and stood down the Jersey brach.

At 1.08.48 the Titania rounded Sandy Hook Lightship and sped on her way to Shrewsbury Rocks.

Titania rounded the Shrewsbury Rocks at 2.51.30, Katrina at 1.59.00.
The weather thickened a trifle when the yachts left the rocks and it was impossible to see them at Sandy Hook Lightship.
When next seen the Titania was coming in neck and neck with the Grayling, of the Atlantic fiest.
Titania had a spinnaker boom set, but had no canvas apread on it. Katrina could be seen in the distance far behind and beaten badly.
Titania passed buoy 5 at 3.10.13, going like a race horse.

THE ATLANTIC CLUB REGATTA.

Grayling, Cuvalter, Azalea, Hildegarde, Clara and Mine w Win. ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] SANDY HOOK, N. J., June 21.-The waters of the bay and ocean resembled a polished mirror this morning. Not a ripple disturbed the calm surface and a score of bronzed and weatherbeaten fishermen, whose craft were anchored in the Horseshoe, were scratching masts and whistling shrilly in the vain endeavor to raise a was wind, and soon a good, smart breze blew steady and fast, so the prospect for the match race between the crack seventy-footers. Katrina and Titania, and the postponed regatia of the Atlantic Yacht Club looked very favorable.

Some surprise was created when it was amounced that the Katrina-Pitania match would be sailed to-day. It was in direct clash with the Atlantic Club, and some talk has been induiged in by the memiers of the latter Club, censuring the New York Club for spoiling their race.

It did spoil the Atlantics race from the public's view of it, for the Drincipal feature of it was the race for the seventy-footers.

The Atlantic Club started from its anchorage off Bay Ridge and sailed over the regular course. Following are the entries:

Schooners Class 1—Sea Fox and Grayling Class 2—Clie and Cavalier. Class 3—Azalia and Fearless.

Stoops —Class 2—Gracle, Shanrook and Fanoy. Class 1—Hiddegard and Athon. Class 4—Clara, Anacosda and Roamer. Class 3—Stells, Amaranth. Class C-Banshee, Nymph. Class 7—Hybria Mistral, lectrica, Saracon, Daisy, Nomad, Ederan. Class 8—Kathoen, Cude, Arab, Ma Belle. Class 11—Bipo, Marjoris and Tappen.

At 11.20 o'clock the prenaratory gun was fired from the plateau in front of the club-home at Bay Ridge. Five minutes later the starting gun hoomed and the Yachts tore down to the starting line, close hauled under ordinary working canvas.

They crossed the line in the following order:

Nomad, 11.35; Frolic, 11.37, 40; Wona, 11.
38.40; Monette, 11, 40.

The delay in starting was caused by the withdrawal of the sloop Hanshee, because of breaking her Spinnaker boom, and the substitution of the Minerva.

The Grayling has a walk-over, the Sea Fox having withdrawn.
Grayling led the fleet past quaratine. Then

Grayling rounded the buoy on the Southwest spit at 12.59.00. The other leaders rounded as follows: Hildegarde, I.05.00; Athlon, 1.10.00; Clara, 1.17.12.

Grayling stood south of the buoy a short distance and then tacked to starboard for Buoy 5. She passed it at 1.16.20; Hildegarde, 1.20.30; Minerva, 1.37.28; Clara, 1.38.30; Athlon, 1.40.45; Nymph, 1.43; Anaconda, 1.43.25; Cavalier, 1.50.30; Mistral, 2.00.15; Hypatia, 2.05.00.

Minerva turned Scotland Lightship at 2.44.-00; Nymph, 2.51.00.

The others could not be timed because of the heavy weather.

TIGHTENING THE GRIP

There Seems No Escape for the Cronin Assassins Now.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.1 CHICAGO, June 21. - Since the positive identification of Martin Burke, the suspect under arrest at Winnipeg, by Officer Collins, the Chicago police have let out some of the evidence which they have against the man. Up to this time it has only been a question as to whether the Martin Burke arrested in Winnipeg was the real Martin Burke they wanted.

The prisoner had assured the Canadian authorities that he was not and that there had been some mistake in his identity.

Officer Collins recognized him immediately as the Chicago suspect, and addressed him by name. "Well, Burke," he said, "this is a bad place to be in." "Yes, John, it is," was the response of the other, who saw his mistake too late to make his subsequent denial of his acquaintance with Collins of any effect. It appears that the Chicago police were not to instrumental in securing Burke's arrest a has been commonly supposed.

As a matter of fact, his talk and suspicious actions first attracted the attention of the ticket agent at Winnepeg, and he informed the police, who arrested Burke on mere suspicion and then sent word to Cuicago that they had a man who might be wanted there. What Burke told Calder, the ticket agent, was that he wanted a ticket that would take him clear through to Montreal without leaving the Canadian territory, because he had had trouble in the United States, and objected to going over the border again.

The Winnipeg authorities have sent word that they have no dould as to Burke's identity, and as soon as the requisition papers from the United States Government have been received they will be ready to turn him over to the Chicago police.

The arrest of the man Kuhn, who is an intimate friend of Detective Dan Coughlin, has created considerable talk.

He is the man who was first mentioned as "Cooney," and it is believed that he has been identified either as the mysterious J. B. Simons or the brother of Frank Williams.

Whether he is of not the police say that they are on a hot trail, and it is given out that a complete exposure of the murderous conspiracy will shortly be made. actions first attracted the attention of the

CASK OF SPIRITS EXPLODED.

Brief but Exciting Fire in Acker, Merrall & Condit's Store. Shortly before 3 P. M. to-day a cask of spirits exploded in the cellar of Acker, Merralt & Condit's wholesale grocery store, at West Broadway and Chambers street. The fumes of the released spirits were ignited by a burning gas let and a first-class configra-tion seemed imminent.

Employees of the firm, however, succeeded by the free use of salt in smothering the flames before the arrival of the fire engines.

Our Boys Being Royally Treated by Cleveland's Good People.

JIM MUTRIE AND THE LUNATIC.

New York .

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD! CLEVELAND, June 21.—The Giants have never visited a city where they were better treated than right here in Cleveland.

Every theatre in town is open to them, and as the boys are extremely partial to the deceptions of the stage, they have not been at all backward in accepting the courtesies of the different box offices. Al Johnson, too, the President of the Electric Motor Car Company, has been unremitting in his efforts to insure the ball-players an enjoyable visit. Last evening Mr. Johnson invited the boys for a sail on the lake, and those of them who accepted had a very merry trip on board the handsome yacht Wasp, the property of George W. Gardner, Mayor of the city. This morning Mr. Johnson placed a specia electric car at the service of the Club, and under his chaperonage an eleven-mile ride out of town

During the journey the car did a mile and one-half in three and one-half miniftes. A stop was made at the City Infirmary where 600 incurable lunatics are confined.

Many funny things happened while the boys were looking over the place, but probably the most ludicrous sight was the way Jim Mutrie acted when a female lunatic began turning somersaults directly in front of him. Jim is a modest man at all times, and the eccentricities of the poor crazy girl simply appalled him He tried his best to get away from what embarrassed him, but in vain.

Turn which way he would the lunatic was always in front of him, and it is likely that she would have been there still had not Mr. Johnson co e to the rescue and borne the blushing and horrified manager away.

In the afternoon, when the Club took the ball field, they were greeted by the same pleasant weather and a crowd of 3, 500 pe During the practice, Slattery broke a finger.

Ward, on account of a lame arm, did not play, and Hatfield was substituted. Play began with the Giants in the field.

SEPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. EXETER, N. H., June 21, -The expulsion of Stuart M., the generous athletic son of Calvin S. Brice from the Phillips-Exeter Academy, is still the reigning topic here, and the sympathy of the majority among the students remains with young Brice.

Class of '89 has elected him President and insisted on hearing him read the class his tory which he had prepared for Class Day. Coming as it did upon the very eve of his graduation, it is felt that his offense might have been justly overlooked by the Faculty, especially as, at its worst, his act was but one of college boy ebullition, involving no serious infraction

In fact, the offense was wholly technical. He had been requested to remain away from Exeter, with his good spirits and generous jollifications, until the end of the term. He obeyed up to Saturday, when great temptation brought him on to assist in the celebration of the Andover-Exeter ball game. Exeter ball game.

FOG SPOILED LAST TWO RACES.

ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. BRIGHTON BEACH RACE TRACE, June 21.—It is very evident that there is no scarcity of horses at Brighton Beach. judging from to-day's programme. There were 129 horses entered for six races, and they were enough to start two or three race meetings.

Of course there was considerable scratching indulged in, but still there were enough horses left in the first and third races to make racing with safety doubtful.

The flag was in the hands of that able starter. . F. Caldwell, but the track was far too narrow o get good starts. The track was in good condition and the crowd

The track was in good condition and the crowd very large.

The racing began with a dash of five furlongs for maiden two-year-olds. Out of twenty-six entries nineteen faced the starter. It was won easily by McMahon & Co's colt John Atwood.

Owing to some misunderstanding in regard to the Cedarhurst opening, there was to have been no racing at Brighton on Monday. The meeting at Cedarhurst, however, does not begin till Friday next, and the Beach will take next Monday into camp and will race.

Long Jack won the second race easily, which adde the second race for McMahon & Co., of which "Snapper" Garrison is the silent partner. Pericles, the favorite, finished second.

NO MERCY FOR JIM.

Bill Poole's Cousin Gets the Utmost Penalty of the Law.

"James Poole, have you anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced upon

So spoke Judge Patterson a little sternly to to the young man who indulged his passion for pistel practice on Tom Burns and Policeman Thomas J. Donovan June 9th, in the murky atmosphere of Mott street. He was convicted of assault in the second degree on the policeman.

Joe Moss rose to make Mr. Poole's vicarious response to Judge Patterson's question. He made rather a weak attempt to show that Mr. Poole's associates were largely retained by for the erratic conduct of his that Mr. Poole's associates were largely responsible for the erratic conduct of his client. They had tried to rope him into their evil ways again and Jim in defense had been a little quick with his sistol, &c., &c. When Jo got through his perfunctory plee, the Clerk signed to Poole to rise. Judge Patterson said:

There is no extenuation for your crime. The Burns side was kept out of sight, and I did not let the jury be affected by it. You were not five weeks out of prisen, where you had been confined for years for a murderous assault, when you made this attempt. I sentence you to five years' imprisonment. Poole's jaw-bones became sharply defined for a moment as he set them and then he moved coolly off to the prisoner's pen, took off his stately frock coat, and put on a wine-

The click of the hand-cuffs was heard as he was manacled to a fellow prisoner.

As he moved away Judge Patterson said:

'Four years in isix months.

He had made balf a year's mistake in the sentence. The three years of his former sentence commuted for his good behavior in onfinement return upon him for his bad behavior in freedom.

Jim sat looking fixedly out at the blue sky his lips moving as if he were taking up the term of imprisonment before him. Then he turned and asked the man in charge if he couldn't be taken back to the Tombs, where his mother and sister were waiting to see him. A friend brought him a piece of pie and he ate it slowly with his left, un-manacled hand.

To morrow he goes back to Sing Sing for mother eight years. His sentence was the extreme anowed by law. Belva Lockwood Writes Her Observations of Paris for the SUNDAY WORLD.

Man Found Dead in Carmansville with a Pullet in His Head.

R. H. on His Clothing and Richard Hallager on a Card.

A fine-looking Irishman was found dead in a onely spot in the vicinity of Two Hundred and

First street and Eleventh avenue about noon time to-day. He lay on the broad of his back, his blue eyes wide open and staring. He had evidently been dead some bours, for the body was cold and white. The man was well dressed. His right hand loosely clutched a revolver. There was a bullet wound in the head.

The police believe, therefore, that the man shot himself. At the station-house his clothing was exam He wore a dark coat and vest and striped

He wore a dark coat and vest and striped tronsers of good quality.

His underwear was white, and on the band of his drawers was sewn the initials "R. H."

On cards found in his vest pocket was marked "Richard Hailager, in care of Jurgens, 88 La Salle street, Chicago, Ill."

The police are not sure if this is the dead man a name or not.

They presume it is. Something about his appearance and the cut of his clothing lead them to believe that he was a stranger in this vicinity who only recently arrived from the West.

It is difficult to conceive why he should go to such a louely and out of the way spot to kill himself if he did commit the deed.

The unknown was a good-looking, well-built fellow and wore a brown mustache.

His hands were white and soft and appeared not used to hard work.

A gardener named Hill, who lives at Two Hundred and First street, told the police this afternoon that he heard a pistol-shot while on his way to market at 2 o clock this morning.

Capt. Cortright is investigating the case.

Coakley is a tall, well-built man with a rather ish mustache.

He was well dressed and is reputed to have money.

For the greater part of his life, the police say, he has been the companion and associate of thieves, and although frequently suspected and arrested on such suspicion of crime, he has always escaped punishment.

Coakley, in company with a pickpocket named Williams, boarded a Grand street car on January 24 hast.

Israel Heickowitz, of 90 Cannon street, felt Williams joetle against him, and soon after the two men left the car Heickowitz discovered that his pocket had been cut and $545 in tills abstracted.

He pursued the two men, caused their arrest, and they were held for trial.

Coakley's friends tried to bribe Heickowitz not to appear against him, and the affair created some excitement, as a prominent lawyer was implicated in it.

The two men were indicted by the Grand Jury and the trial fixed for yesterday.

Meanwhile, Assistant District Attorney Jerome learned that Heickowitz had disappeared, and the trial was adjourned until this morning.

He did not appear to-day, and the supposition is that he has been bribed to leave the country.

Mr. Jerome hopes to prove Coakley's guit by other witnesses and Williams may be accepted as State's evidence, in which case there is little doubt of a verdict of guilty.

Coakley claims he was not in the city the night of the robbery.
